

Antonin Aeck, FAIA, LEED AP

Antonin “Tony” Aeck serves as chairman of architecture, interiors, planning and preservation firm Lord Aeck Sargent. With offices in Ann Arbor, Atlanta, Austin, Chapel Hill and Washington, and projects dispersed throughout the U.S., Aeck has enjoyed an interesting and varied 30+ year practice. Although his main focus has been mainstream institutional and governmental projects, his experience includes such atypical commissions as the historic restoration of two Georgia capitols, a new national mosque for the nation of Nigeria, an anti-terrorism first-responder center for the U.S. Department of Defense and a sustainable transit station in suburban Beijing.

Aeck takes a particular interest in advancing design technologies to enhance project delivery, and his architectural career is closely linked with service to the profession and community organizations. He is currently AIA Georgia’s representative on the Editorial Review Board of the Georgia State Construction Manual.

Aeck holds bachelor’s degrees in art and architecture from Rice University, where he graduated magna cum laude. Before coming to his senses, he built and flew his own hot air balloon, retiring with a commercial instructor rating.

###

November 2013