

Joseph M. Greco, AIA, LEED AP

As president of architecture and design firm Lord Aeck Sargent (LAS), Joe Greco leads the design efforts for many of the firm's projects. A 23-year veteran of LAS, he promotes the firm's core design values through his ability to integrate complex functional and technical program requirements into elegant design solutions.

As a LEED Accredited Professional, Greco champions firm's sustainable design goals, espousing that responsive design must minimize the negative impact of construction on the environment and create enduring spaces for its inhabitants and the greater community.

Currently, Greco heads the firm's corporate leadership team. A principal since 2000, he most recently directed LAS' Education practice area while serving as a project principal and design leader on many award-winning, sustainable projects firmwide.

Greco joined LAS in 1990, having previously worked previously in Boston and Atlanta. He earned his master's degree in architecture from the Harvard University Graduate School of Design and his bachelor's of science degree, majoring in architecture, from the Georgia Institute of Technology. As a Georgia Tech undergraduate he received a scholarship attending the Fontainebleau Study Program at the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris.

A member of the American Institute of Architects (AIA), Greco also holds a National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB) certificate and is a registered architect in numerous states across the country.

In his leisure time, Greco enjoys travel, participating in Architecture League softball, playing soccer and golf and renovating his 1860s home in Decatur, Georgia, where he resides with his wife and two sons.

###

November 2013